

Aiming to raise awareness and motivate the target community to join the open access movement and promote their participation, the RCAAP project undertake some activities in the field of communication, dissemination and training.

The tools and techniques used in the field of communication and dissemination are diverse consisting not only conventional materials as well as Web 2.0 tools (blog , Twitter , Facebook)

E-learning modules are publicly available, for repository managers, for the general public and even videos on the topic of open access.

We regularly held face-to-face sessions for managers and repository administrators.